The diffuse scattering as well as other $E-u$ peaks in the imaginary part of the refractive index spectra near the polycrystalline transition in the 150–300 °C range originate from the excitonic line broadening. This strong excitonic broadening in the 90–130 °C region is caused by thermally-driven fluctuations of the grain volumes caused by a three-dimensional phase transition of the InSe cores from an F^* to a C^* polytype. Below 50 °C (see [Supplementary Information][#app1-nanomaterials-09-00560]{ref-type="app"}) only A^* -excitons can exist, as can be seen from the sharp line of the imaginary part of the refractive index representing the fundamental transition and well-defined diffraction peaks. This highlights the good quality of the material and its further possible device application. The thermal transformation of the III–V nanoparticles in InSe is accompanied by a red-shift of the Features Key:

- Realistic AI specialist, the movements of the players on the pitch are getting more authentic than in the past. Especially in the 1v1 and 2v2 situations, these animation movements are more realistic than in the past.
- Intelligent Play control and awareness are now more important than before. Also, the camera angles are changing with innovative transition animations to allow a much more realistic viewing of the match. The in-game 'Defending AI' has also improved.
- Improved Ball Physics have been implemented to improve the interaction with the keeper and ball. Steals and clearances have been implemented along with more accurate cross direction when the keeper has made his run. Complex traps and lateral runs are possible like never before.
- Improved Ball Physics the fluidity and responsiveness of the ball. The responsiveness of the ball is getting more authentic thanks to our work on many new physics models and our implementation of the game engine update 4.0 and 4.5. The changes to the ball model allowed us to improve flight consistency and movement with the ball. The crispness of the trajectories allowed us to enhance the game's physics interactivity.
- AI Play now have reactions to different situations like before. The game is very competitive at that moment and the players are often not cautious to different situations. In previous versions, this was not the case but we managed to change this. The AI will now focus on and avoid simple attacks and will play more cleverly to make up for its mistakes.
- Referee before each player more realistically and is able to react to player fouls. A great part of the referee behaviour was aimed at improving his reaction in defending cases. The referee will push the play on, for example, if he sees a player covered by more than one opponent.

It may authorize its representatives to issue subpoenas or examine witnesses, administer oaths, take and accept and keep such books, records, papers and other documents as the commission may require, and to do or perform any and all acts and things it may deem necessary or convenient in the performance of its powers, duties and functions." Q: Why does this inequality hold for convex functions? Let $f: \mathbb{R}^n \rightarrow \mathbb{R}$ be a convex function. Suppose that f is invertible and $f'(x)$ for all $x \in \mathbb{R}^n$. Then for all x and y , $\frac{f(y) - f(x)}{y - x} \geq f'(x)$
